

ARABIAN HORSE ASSOCIATION

REGION I

January 2019

It is January 2019!!

Do you find that hard to believe? I do! Where have all the years gone?

Those of you that went to convention know that we had some unplanned excitement at this event. For those of you that did not go, I am sure that you have heard the story already so I won't belabor the point here. The entire convention handled the event so well that there was little confusion.

So now to what went on before the fire. There is a new Marketing Director named Gretchen Dirks. She is one of the top dog handlers in the AKC and shows Standard Poodles. I must admit one of my favorite breeds. You can see from the fact that the Regional Insider will be changing that she is on top of things already.

Work continues on the AHA building and financially we are in good shape. Because of the volatility in the market Brad Short continues to invest mainly in bonds with some investment in stocks for long term. Jim Lawless told us that the IT department is fully staffed and doing a lot of updating. Debbie Fuentes reported that registrations and memberships are down. This seems to be the trend with all the breeds. Youth Nationals were also down this year.

Our museum at the Kentucky Horse Park is the leading attraction in the Park, Howard Pike will be going to visit the museum and work with the new director there to refurbish the attractions. It will be an expensive deal with 60K being spent on IT alone. There are still a lot of artifacts from when the Pure Bred Trust moved from Denver, that need to find a new home.

WAHO will be meeting Australia this next year, February 3-10, 2019. There is the probability that WAHO will raise their fees to join. One of the things that WAHO will be looking at is the changing of horse names. They want to be able to verify the name change.

There are currently 29 members on the AHA Board. There might be some changes coming in the future such as a smaller board. No regional changes are planned for now and maybe not at all. There might be a survey coming out in the new year as to where we are now and another one where are we going. Stay Tuned.

I guess I have rambled on long enough and I hope have given you all a brief look at what went on, both in the convention and the Board Meeting.

I hope this year of 2019 will be great year for all of Region One!

DEGENERATIVE JOINT DISEASE

The FAQs of Degenerative Joint Disease and Adequan® i.m. (polysulfated glycosaminoglycan)

Answered By Dr. Marian Little, DVM, Technical Services Veterinarian, Luitpold Pharmaceuticals

In a recent interview, Dr. Marian Little, DVM, answers frequently asked questions regarding lameness and how Adequan® i.m. may be appropriate for your equine athlete diagnosed with Degenerative Joint Disease (DJD). Adequan® i.m. is the only FDA-approved equine PSGAG for the intramuscular treatment of non-infectious DJD of the carpal and hock joints. Adequan® i.m. is proven to diminish the destructive processes of DJD, reverse the processes which result in the loss of cartilage components, and improve joint function and associated lameness.

Q: Is there a specific equine conformation type that may be more likely to develop non-infectious degenerative joint disease (DJD)? (For example, a horse that toes out, or a horse with straight hocks, etc.)

A: Conformation can greatly influence the degree of wear and tear that a joint undergoes. Conformational abnormalities alter the forces applied to a joint and can potentially lead to joint instability, injury and DJD. The mature equine athlete that is performing well has likely adapted to whatever conformation issues exist. However, if you are considering purchasing a young, unproven horse, avoiding horses with significant conformational flaws will increase the likelihood of the chosen horse staying sound. In young foals and growing horses, conformational abnormalities should be addressed as early as possible through proper nutrition, balanced farriery, adequate training and muscle development, and in some cases, surgical intervention.

Q: With respect to different disciplines, would a hunter-jumper or eventer be more susceptible to DJD than a cutting or reining horse?

A: Any horse can develop DJD regardless of age, breed or discipline. However, the horse's discipline may predispose the horse to developing DJD in particular joints. For example, cutting or reining horses put significant stress on their hocks and stifles, and these can be locations where DJD occurs more frequently; whereas hunters will frequently experience more front-limb lameness, such as in the coffin or fetlock joints. It is important to understand that DJD can occur within any joint that consistently experiences wear and tear, known as "use trauma," and can occur in any performance horse, regardless of discipline.

Q: What is the best Adequan® i.m. (polysulfated glycosaminoglycan) dosing regimen for a horse that is diagnosed with DJD?

A: When experiencing a lameness problem, it is important to first obtain an accurate diagnosis from your veterinarian in order to determine the appropriate course of treatment. Initiating a medical treatment without a firm diagnosis can lead to a poor outcome and unnecessary expense. Adequan® i.m. is Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approved for the intramuscular treatment of non-infectious degenerative and/or traumatic joint dysfunction and associated lameness of the carpal and hock joints.¹ If a horse has been diagnosed with DJD, your veterinarian may prescribe Adequan® i.m. (polysulfated glycosaminoglycan). The labeled dose of Adequan® i.m. is 500 mg every 4 days for 28 days intramuscularly (for a total of 7 injections).¹ The series should be repeated as needed upon recurrence of the clinical signs of DJD in your horse. There is no FDA approval for, and no published data to support, maintenance dosing regimens for Adequan® i.m.

Q: In your opinion, what is the importance of using FDA-approved products in your horse versus other options?

A: I cannot over-emphasize the importance of using FDA-approved products. FDA-approved products have been rigorously tested for safety and efficacy through required clinical studies. It should always be preferable to use FDA-approved products over other products circulating in the equine marketplace, such as compounded medications and medical devices, which are not required to demonstrate safety or efficacy, are not necessarily routinely monitored, and are not regulated with the same level of scrutiny.

Q: Adequan® i.m. is an intramuscular injection – how does it work its way to my horse's joints?

A: Adequan® i.m. (polysulfated glycosaminoglycan) is well-supported by published safety and efficacy studies that led to initial FDA approval and has since served the equine industry for more than 27 years. After intramuscular injection, Adequan® i.m. has been shown to diffuse into the bloodstream, which transports the drug into joint synovial fluid, where it is absorbed by articular cartilage at therapeutic levels that inhibit cartilage degrading enzymes.² Adequan® i.m. diminishes the destructive processes of DJD, reverses the processes which result in loss of cartilage components and improves joint function and associated lameness. Adequan® i.m. is the only FDA-approved equine PSGAG recommended for the intramuscular treatment of non-infectious degenerative and/or traumatic joint dysfunction and associated lameness of the carpal and hock joints in horses.¹

Consult your veterinarian if you notice any changes in your horse that may signal the onset of DJD and discuss whether Adequan® i.m. is right for your horse. For more information on Adequan® i.m., please visit www.adequan.com.

Adequan® i.m.: For the intramuscular treatment of non-infectious degenerative and/or traumatic joint dysfunction and associated lameness of the carpal and hock joints in horses. There are no known contraindications to the use of intramuscular Adequan® i.m. brand Polysulfated Glycosaminoglycan in horses. Studies have not been conducted to establish safety in breeding horses. WARNING: Do not use in horses intended for human consumption. Not for use in humans. Keep this and all medications out of the reach of children. CAUTION: Federal law restricts this drug to use by or on the order of a licensed veterinarian.

Dr. Marian G. Little earned her DVM from The University of Tennessee in 2000. She completed an internship in Equine Medicine and Surgery at Mississippi State University. Wrks4Good Equine Sports Massage and CranioSacral Therapy

Why use ESMT and CranioSacral Therapy?

Using both techniques together to help release not only those tight deeper muscles but the Fascia layer just under the skin that covers the entire connected tissue of the body.

- 🐾 Relieves pain, reduces inflammation and swelling
- 🐾 Reduces muscle strain or spasms that can cause current and/or future motion restrictions
- 🐾 Increases range of motion
- 🐾 Increases effectiveness of chiropractic adjustments
- 🐾 Improves circulation which promotes more rapid healing of injuries
- 🐾 Prevents and relieves adhesions
- 🐾 Aids in mental relaxation and releases tension
- 🐾 Releases endorphins to help your horse feel better
- 🐾 Helps maintain and restore muscles during and after layups
- 🐾 Helps relieve stress in opposing muscles when a horse has an injury.
- 🐾 Pre Competition – loosens, warms and readies muscles for the event.
- 🐾 Post Competition – aids in returning muscles to their normal state much faster than without a massage to help prevent future muscle problems
